"I'm in a wheelchair, so I don't really know what it's like to have to be outside of a wheelchair. Even to me, it was really kind of a shock," said Kiara Pacheco. Kiara explained that she is actually a dance teacher and was at the University of St. Thomas for a dance class. She had been using a ramp with wheels to get her wheelchair into her classroom. When she decided to go outside for lunch, she forgot to pull her wheels back in. When she was trying to get her chair in the door, she fell right out of it. "[The] first thing I thought of was my head hitting the ground and I thought, oh my gosh, my head really must be split open. That wasn't the case, but it definitely could have been," said Kiara. Luckily, a friend of hers, Evan Aldoff, happened to be outside when it happened. "I was talking to my friend, who is a senior at St. Thomas and also plays trumpet in the marching band, and he was talking about how he had a conversation with a student about wheelchair accessibility at the school," said Evan. Later that day, Kiara had a conversation with a student who has used a wheelchair her whole life. "I was talking to her and she explained to me about the fact that she had a hard time finding an accessible bathroom or finding accessible parking spaces. She said she had never experienced a parking space that she could actually back up to," said Kiara. After being on campus, Kiara knew what she wanted to do to help people. "Because we don't always think about the accessibility issues that occur, I think there is a lot of students who have questions and worries that are brushed off, or it's not their priority," said Kiara. After the incident, Kiara was informed that the wheel needs to go down the ramp when the chair goes in and out of the door. "It's important because

Q: How do I break a promise, after this.dao.find(id) returns? This is my first question on Stackoverflow, so I hope I don't do something wrong! I'm just starting to learn JS/Angular and I'm working on a simple application. I have a promise, in which I search the user which has the id I request. If that doesn't exist, I create it. The problem is that when I break this promise, a lot of things happen and I can't understand why... So far I've come up with this code `app.get('/detail/:id', function(req, res){ var id = req.params.id; var promise = this.dao.find(id); promise.then(function(user){ if(user == null){ this.dao.create(req.params.id); this.dao.find(id); } res.redirect('/detail/'+id); }).catch(function(err){ res.send(err); }); });` The thing is that the "else" does not get executed, even if the user was not found, and the same thing happens with the "then" and the "catch". On my console, I get [nodemon] app crashed - waiting for file changes before starting... When I remove one of the promises, it works as expected, and if both calls are commented out, the else block is executed. So I assume it is not working because of the
